

Environmental policy

We at Viking Toys are aware of that our operation in some way affects the local and global environment. Through active environmental work we reduce these affects and improve constantly by:

- producing non-toxic toys without lower one's standard of quality and strive to choose products and services with a low affect on the environment.
- following environmental laws and regulations and take those issues into account in our manufacturing countries.
- making our workforce committed since our environmental work should be an integral part of day-to-day operations.
- having an open communication with public, customers, suppliers, authorities and other interested parties about our environmental work.
